SECTION 2

Architectural Description

Single pipe concrete culvert with angled abutments and damaged curb. Contributing structure to an eligible concrete-bed road segment just east of the now closed and removed picnic area and CR 26 on the south side access road of I-40 to where the access road diverges from I-40 near the TX/OK border before entering Texola. Approximately 2.3 miles in length with only minor patching areas.

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

This is a five-span steel and concrete bridge built in 1932 over the now abandoned roadbed of the former CRI&G Railroad. The bridge was designed by M.L. Grady and constructed by contractor E.T. Prator. The bridge is 125' long and contains a 24' wide concrete roadway. It features a main span constructed of steel I-beams encased in concrete. The remaining spans are reinforced concrete girders resting on reinforced concrete pile bents. The bridge's railing is a standard concrete post and double beam design. Concrete slab retaining walls cover embankments on both sides of the bridge. The bridge deck is 27' in width and was originally of concrete and later paved with asphalt.

The bridge was constructed to span the railroad bed located approximately 25' below the bridge's deck. The railroad was abandoned in the late 20th century and the steel rails and cross ties have been removed. The bridge carried Route 66 traffic until 1960 when Interstate 40 was completed approximately 30' to the north. The historic roadbed of Route 66 then was designated as a frontage road for the interstate. The bridge continues to be used as part of the I-40 frontage road system.

The bridge's concrete encased steel I-beam design is noteworthy and is one of the few examples of this bridge type in Texas, and is the last vehicular bridge in Texas directly associated with Route 66. The bridge retains its original design, form, and materials, and meets the registration requirements for the property type of "Road Bridges" set forth in the Multiple Property Documentation Form "Route 66 in Texas MPS." (NR nomination)

TxDOT Bridge ID 25-242-00275-13-001

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

Concrete-bed road segment just east of the now closed and removed picnic area and CR 26 on the south side access road of I-40 to where the access road diverges from I-40 near the TX/OK border before entering Texola. Approximately 2.3 miles in length with only minor patching areas. One lane in each direction with shallow shoulders on either side. Road width is 18' made of concrete with steel reinforcing. It is located approximately 60' south of I-40. The surrounding landscape remains undeveloped and is rural in nature.

The road segment retains integrity of location, design, materials, workmanship, setting, feeling and association.

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

Two-level gas station. The shorter level houses the sales office with two entry doors for possibly two separate sales areas, flat roof, rectangular plan. The taller level houses two service bays with roll-up doors. The canopy shelters two gas pump islands and has a shed-roofed cornice, supported by wood box columns. There is a newer addition that is taller with low-slope front-gabled roof that was added by 2016 connected to the original service station with a small connector.

Recorded By: Leslie Wolfenden  Date Recorded: 12/8/2017
Did not update survey on this as historical aerial views do not show evidence of a tourist court. Small one-story rectangular-plan side-gabled residence with 2-step concrete stoop, stuccoed walls, boarded up windows, single entry door. Possible remnant of tourist cabin either on site or moved here, no evidence. Historical aerial view of 1962 do not show any other buildings in vicinity.

Architectural Description

4-part building from west to east. A: concrete block building with curved metal roof, one overhead door in center of façade, not visible but like metal, concrete loading dock protrudes to the south. B: inset, concrete block building with rounded metal roof runs 90 degrees to building A. also has large loading dock and centered loading door. C: front gable with canopy, composition shingle roof, canopy supported by metal posts placed in pyramidal bases. These were pump islands. Gable runs parallel to roofline of A and perpendicular to roofline of B. This may have been original core of complex. D: corrugated metal sides. A and B not connected. B and C are connected. D is connected, has shed roof sloping to east. One overhead door in D.

Architectural Description
A motel complex featuring to rectangular blocks and U-plan block at the rear. The oldest part is the one-story rectangular office/restaurant block at the northeast corner that pre-dates 1962 (historical aerial views and maps); this has been heavily modified and no longer appears historic. It has a wraparound arcade, metal-framed glass double entry doors with sidelights and transom windows, fixed windows, stuccoed walls, parapet walls with gabled features, and stuccoed pilasters on rear part. The second rectangular block is two-story back-to-back room units with arcaded walkways, stuccoed walls, single entry doors with fixed windows and A/C units below. The U-plan block is one-story room units with metal-clad shed-roofed walkway porches supported by plain posts, wood siding, single entry doors and fixed windows with A/C units below. The west leg of the U is back-to back rooms. The two newer parts were built sometime between 1978 and 1996 (based on historical aerial views and maps).

Architectural Description

One-story concrete and brick commercial building clad in stucco and decorative glazed tile. It has a modified rectangular plan and flat roof. Erected in 1936, the Art Deco building contains two separate business spaces, and is named for its most notable features -- a large concrete tower on the gas station and a smaller one over the café. The building is an outstanding and unusual example of Art Deco decoration applied to a roadside commercial building, and retains a high degree of architectural integrity. (NR nomination)

Architectural Description

One-story building with two blocks: front and rear. The rear block is the original part with curved glass block windows on the front corners, covered with modern wood siding. The front block is an addition with wood-shingled gambrel roof, wood siding, single entry door, gabled bay windows, and post-dates 1978 (historical maps). There is a small outbuilding to the northwest with a low-slope hipped-roof, stuccoed walls, single entry door, and boarded up windows, probably dates to c 1970.

![Image of the Shamrock gas station, now replaced by Big Vern's Steakhouse. The building no longer resembles a gas station, with a modern steakhouse facade and signage.]
SECTION 2

Architectural Description

Original gas station was demolished by 2010 and replaced by current building. Orange stain on concrete remains showing where original building was located. One-story metal-clad building with many modern additions to side and rear, gabled and flat roofs. Historical aerial view show that the original building was located slightly to NE (reddish slab) and remnants of gas pump islands.

Architectural Description

Originally a tourist court with a total of 14 cabins (Route 66 in Texas book). Today it has 6 rectangular-plan units and 1 L-plan unit. The L-plan is closest to the road and has a hipped roof, attached garage with paneled roll-up door, wood-framed multi-pane sash windows, 1 round window, brick sills, rubble stone veneer. The other 6 cabins have side-gabled roofs, single entry doors, wood-framed multi-pane sash windows, brick sills, rubble stone veneer, and attached hip-roofed carport. Each cabin has two units. The cabins are arranged in two rows around two grassy areas and gravel drive. One unit (NW unit) has been re-sided in plywood and carports are missing. All other units have carports, but some filled in. This complex had 8 cabins in 1931 and 12 cabins in 1945.

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

One-story E-plan motel complex with metal hipped roof, red brick skirting with board-and-batten siding on upper walls, red brick rear walls, single entry doors with casement windows, inset porches supported by plain wood posts with brackets. Motel office has extended hip-roofed porte cochere supported by metal poles, single glass panel entry door, wood-framed fixed windows, brick skirting with board-and-batten upper walls. West wing is slightly different from rest and has been converted to assisted living; has exposed rafters at eaves, rear of units (west side) has small patio covers and fenced yards.

Behind the motel is a filled-in swimming pool on a terrace, now a grassy sitting and play area. Wooden posts supporting overhang at units replaced wrought iron post (original may be at southeast corner of office).

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

One-story gable-roofed U-plan motel complex with attached office/restaurant. The complex has changed a bit over time; the front-gabled block appears to be the original office/motel that had a linear block of units behind it. The current office is a later addition with complex roofline connecting it to the restaurant block, wood-framed display windows, single glass panel entry door. The room block has Roman brick skirting with horizontal wood siding above, inset porches supported by chamfered wood box columns, single entry doors with fixed windows. The pool area is now fenced with wood privacy fence and sheltered by front-gabled rectangular-plan gazebo. The two end units (on east and west) have horizontal flush siding above the brick; rest of complex has brick from foundation to roof.

Image Description: Photograph of the Route 66 Inn with the sign visible in the foreground. The building is characterized by a prominent sign and architectural details typical of motels and tourist courts from the mid-20th century.
Tall two-legged sign with multiple rectangular sign areas of different sizes. The topmost one has the motel name and is the largest one. The next sign is rectangular and displays the various amenities. The next sign is much smaller and has a lighted vacancy/no vacancy sign. The last sign is the Historic Route 66 shield.

Architectural Description

One-story rectangular-plan blond brick building with two parts; east half is a store type with two sets of four wood-framed display windows (one goes lower to the ground), metal-framed glass single entry door on front façade, metal-framed glass single entry door with sidelight on east elevation under a shed-roofed metal canopy. The west half is a low-slope gable-roofed metal warehouse with three roll-up garage doors (center one is taller) on front and rear, stepped parapet in blond brick on front façade, and sheet-metal siding on west elevation. The east half is the older part of the building; west half was not present in 1962 (historical aerial views).

Architectural Description

A motel complex with two parts: 2-story block and 1-story asymmetrical U-plan block. Two-story shed-roofed concrete block motel block with exterior entrances accessed via two-story metal balcony, partly board-and-batten-clad motel office; 10 units have single entry door with glass block window on one side and wood-framed sash window on the other. One-story block appears to have been in at least two stages as the east part does not line up with west part. The east part has gable roof that extends out to provide shelter for entries (creating asymmetrical side view), vertical wood siding, single entry doors, single wood-framed windows, approximately 16 units. The west part is set slightly back from the east part and has gable roof that extends out to provide shelter for entries (creating asymmetrical side view), some units have 'bumpouts' to create more interior space. Has a small building to rear of two-story block that appears that it may have functioned as a restaurant. One-story shed-roofed rectangular-plan building with canted front eave, two entry doors with sidelights, replacement siding.

Date Recorded: 12/20/2006
The McLean Commercial Historic District is located in the Panhandle town of McLean, Texas (2005 pop. Est 292). The district is primarily commercial in character and is located in the town's historic business area along what was formerly US Route 66. The McLean Commercial Historic District is nominated to the National Register under Criterion A in the area of Commerce as the historic commercial area that served a regional population as well as interstate travelers along Route 66, with a wide variety of grocery stores, hardware stores, gas stations, and automobile repair shops. The district is also eligible under Criterion C in the area of Architecture as an intact collection of early to mid-20th century commercial buildings, typical of those found throughout the midwest United States. The district contains forty-four buildings, of which forty (91%) are identified as contributing to the significance of the district. These buildings reflect vernacular commercial building forms, as well as several examples of gas station designs of the mid-20th century, as discussed in the MPS document Route 66 in Texas. Of all the small towns along US Route 66 in Texas, the McLean Commercial Historic District contains the largest and most notable collection of buildings associated with this highway." NR nomination

Architectural Description

Building construction in at least 4 phases. First was lower portion that appears now as the basement/water table. It was partially underground. Second was 2-story sanctuary added on top of that, probably by J. Roy Smith. It has an elevated entrance on a chamfered corner, accessed by concrete steps. Third is to the west of #2. It is a 2-story buff brick with crenelated parapet. Windows are 1/1 wood sash. Fourth is the newest addition consisting of 2-story sanctuary with front gable. It is buff brick with dark red brick center bay. Link between #3 and #4 is a low 1-story flat-roofed in red brick. All windows in #4 are place glass with metal frame. Similar 1-story flat-roof wind on far west end off #4 sanctuary. Historic photos and history at museum.

Architectural Description

A 1962 aerial view shows one long linear building (white building in photo) and one small bulding, which may have been Watt Service Station. The linear building may have been motel room units, side-gabled, stuccoed walls, wood-framed sash windows, exposed rafter tails, and flat-roofed addition at the west end for café or office. The smaller building may have been incorporated in the newer building on the east end or demolished. The newer building has brick walls, gabled roof, wood-framed fixed windows. Heavy vegetation hides most of the buildings.

SECTION 2

Architectural Description

One-story rectangular-plan low-sloped front-gabled restaurant with boarded-up windows, brick skirting, Hardiplank siding on sides and rear. Looks very similar to Cowboy Drive-in at the west end of McLean and Aubrey's Dairy Freeze in Shamrock (1-2-483-SH-022). Per Delbert Trew, this was built by original owner of Cowboy Café.
