Historical Context
During World War II, the town of Denison, through the effort of prominent local citizens like Jennie Jackson, proudly confirmed and proclaimed its status as the birthplace of Dwight D. Eisenhower. On June 25, 1942, Major General Eisenhower was appointed by President Roosevelt as the Supreme Allied Commander of European troops. From 1942 to 1944, Jennie Jackson corresponded with Eisenhower and his relatives about his birthplace to confirm her memory of the Eisenhower family who had lived across the street from her in 1890.

Primary Source Activity: A Denisonian Commander Comes Home
40 minutes
Divide the class into pairs/small groups. Display/distribute the Denison Press 1942 and 1946 articles. Distribute the activity worksheet. Share responses when completed.

1942 Articles Answer Key:
What is the main idea of the “Denisonian Commands” article?
[Provides readers information on Eisenhower’s recent appointment by Roosevelt as Supreme Commander of Allied forces in Europe. It also details his military experience and, at multiple points, emphasizes his Texas/Denison connection.]

How does Texas Power and Light play on emotions to encourage war support?
[“Old lady” has only one way to support the war effort, by investing in electric company that provides energy for the war machine that protects her grandsons.]

What information does the “To Our Customers” letter give?
[War Department has amended an order and customers are allowed to buy heating equipment.]

What information does the U.S. Marine graphic image give?
[Major Henry Leonard was the first to hold the military attaché position; I.D. tags worn around the neck include name, fingerprints, blood type; special assault forces use rubber landing boats]
1946 Articles Answer Key:

What is the main idea of the “General Ike” article?
[Denison has prepared a military parade, publicized address, and barbecue to celebrate and honor General Eisenhower’s first visit back to the town of his birth.]

In 1946, what plan did Denison come up with to address a housing shortage?
[Use the lumber from the barracks near Denison that previously housed German war prisoners.]

What businesses placed ads to welcome Eisenhower back to Denison? What is significant about the size?
[The State National Bank, Texas Power & Light Co., La Mode Store. La Mode ad is smaller because larger ads are more expensive.]

What improvements were made to Fair Park in 1946?
[Answers will vary but may include year-round entertainment, first opening of the midway since 1941, new entrance arch featuring neon, new lighting, new rides.]

Primary Source Activity: Eisenhower Day Celebration in Images

15 minutes

Distribute/display the Eisenhower Celebration Day images and the revised program from William Harwell of the Denison Chamber of Commerce to Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn. Tell students to use the resources to sequence the photographs chronologically.

Answer Key:

- Perrin Field arrival
- Big Texas Breakfast
- Parade on Main
- Review stand
- Radio broadcast
Assessment
Evaluate student participation in class discussion and activity organizers for accuracy and understanding.

ELA/Art Extension: Preservation Propaganda
Have students create a propaganda poster or an advertisement for the current Denison Press to recruit local effort for the preservation of Eisenhower’s Birthplace. Needs might include fundraising or investment for preservation and maintenance, restoration of surrounding neighborhood structures or railways, or volunteer support for house tours and events.

DENISON COMMANDS UNITED

Major General Eisenhower Was Formerly Assistant Chief Of Staff At Washington

WASHINGTON, June 26—A fighting Texan was appointed Thursday to the army’s job of the hour—command of the newly established European theatre of operations for United States forces, on which the eyes of the world are focused in expectancy of a possible second front and the showdown struggles of the war.

The appointee was Major Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, until this week assistant chief of staff in charge of operations division. Gen. Eisenhower, 51, a specialist in armored force tactics and one-time right-hand man of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is a native of Denison, Texas.

Gen. Eisenhower arrived Thursday in London, where he will maintain his headquarters. Fresh from conferences with President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Lord Mountbatten, chief of British commandos, Eisenhower plunged at once into the job of co-ordinating his army with Britain’s. He is expected to meet soon with Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, British chief of general staff.

One British staff officer commented recently that “the high state of American training, equipment and morale is such that British and American armies will be able to take the field for attack earlier than had been anticipated.”

Winston Churchill Writing

Brilliant Strategist.

Regarded as one of the army’s most brilliant strategists, Eisenhower’s rise has been meteoric since the United States entered the war—only nine months ago he was a colonel. He won wide recognition last year for skillful handling of troops on a large scale while directing the third field army in maneuvers in the Louisiana-Texas war games.

Assignment of Eisenhower, whose duty in Washington for months has been the preparation of plans for offensive and defensive action by United States forces on all fronts, to command the new theater of operations was believed here to indicate strongly an early invasion of the continent. It appeared that the officer who drew the plans was now being given the principal job in putting them into execution.

Eisenhower’s post in Europe may soon be comparable to that held by Gen. John J. Pershing in 1917-18.
Coincidental with the war department's announcement of the European theatre and the assignment of the Texan to command it, two other Texans were in conference at the White House to receive from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill a review of the war situation. They were House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Bonham and Senator Tom Connally of Marlin, who attended the conference along with other congressional leaders.

Speaker Rayburn told reporters as the delegation left the executive offices, "We came away feeling very hopeful." The question of a second front in Europe was discussed, Rayburn said.

U.S. Marines

by Kreb

Major Henry Leonard

was first Marine Corps officer to hold the office of military attache at the American Legation, Peking, China. He was appointed March 14, 1905.

U.S. Marines

now wear a pair of identification tags around their necks giving their names, fingerprints and blood type.

Special assault units of the Marine Corps use rubber landing boats. They require little storage space aboard ship and are quickly inflated. Each boat carries a group of men and its equipment.
Gen. “Ike” Honor Man Of Denison

The colorful banners on Denison’s streets today depicting the red, white and blue of the American flag which today is floating rather than the flag of the enemy, because our boys again crossed the seas and matched their valor with the pruvers of the enemy, are in fitting of the spirit of Denison as it gladly welcomes the arrival here Saturday of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower who led the forces of the Allies to a glorious victory. The General comes to view for the first time since he was a baby the old home where he was born and to bring a message to the thousands who will be honoring, not only the General, but also the G.I. boys who helped bring about the victory.

The special barbecue in Munson stadium is set for the boys as a gesture of good feeling on the part of all of us, as much as it is a recognition of the presence of the General himself.
Denison has been preparing for the occasion for several weeks and much time has been taken from busy men who have laid aside business of their own for the proper setting of the celebration. These men have worked unhonored and unsung in most cases that the event might go off in every proper way so that those who come within our gates may go away feeling the praise o the city as a city to be depended upon to match occasions which call for caring for visitors.

A Gigantic Parade

Aside from the visit of the General to his birthplace and his address at Forest Park the parade which is slated to be a gigantic thing, comes in for special mention. After the arrival of the General at Perrin Field by plane, who will be accompanied by his wife and also Congressman Sam Rayburn, the party will be met by Mayor W. L. Ashburn at the field to be directed immediate to Denison. They will be joined at Main street where Armstrong enters and the procession will move east on Main.
Barracks For War PrisonerstoServe Housing Shortage

Plans were completed this week whereby the lumber in the barracks which served to house the German war prisoners near Denison, will be transformed into making homes to solve some of the housing shortage here. It was announced by Mayor Will Ashburn. Mr. Ashburn, accompanied by W. T. Loomis were in Ft. Worth this week to attend to the matter of getting the transfer made.

One-family units are possible in the transformation process, it is stated. Since such transfers can only be made through a city or similar artificial citizens, the step was taken through city officials for the deal. As soon as application papers can be passed on the government, the result of the effort to transform the housing to meet the shortage here will be known.

Dallas Fair Park Midway Dated For Opening May 4

Dallas' Fair Park Midway, with an investment of more than a half million dollars in buildings and equipment, will be opened to Central Texas May 4, R. L. Thornton, president of the State Fair of Texas announced this week. This layout, now established in new permanent homes on Midway Avenue, will afford visitors to Dallas one of the largest and most complete amusement parks in the Southwest.

The new Midway, featuring year-round entertainment, will be offered as State Fair officials fire the opening gun for the first exposition since 1941. Fair dates this year have been set for Oct. 5 to 20.

Entrance to the amusement park, which will be the Fair's Midway, will be under a dramatic appearing arch. Letters over the entrance will be two feet high, of porcelain edged with neon.

The Midway will be well lighted with new underground lines supplying the current. A bevy of new rides will be offered for thrill-seekers attending the amusement park. A streamlined merry-go-round, roller rink, train, octopus, whip and other rides will line the half-mile long loop. Two other new additions will be the Bozo and the Rapidia ride, imported from the famous Celoron Park at Jamestown, N. Y.

The new carnival grounds will stretch from the Cotton Bowl Restaurant on Midway to the Pennsylvania Avenue gate to Fair Park.
