The 29-county Texas Forts Trail Region features rich heritage, diverse culture, and unforgettable history, including two Texas Historical Commission state historic sites. Travel and tourism are vital to the Texas economy, and the Forts Trail Region is no exception. In 2018, direct travel spending in the Forts Trail Region accounted for roughly $1.1 billion of the overall $80.3 billion spent by visitors to the state.

Visiting historic sites, communities, and museums is a significant component of the state’s and region’s travel industry. A 2015 study by The University of Texas at Austin and Rutgers University determined that more than 10.5 percent of all travel in Texas is heritage-related.

For more information, contact the Forts Trail Region at tft@texasfortstrail.com, or the Heritage Tourism Program at the Texas Historical Commission at community-heritage@thc.texas.gov.

Travel Matters

- $1,137,130,000 direct travel spending in 2018
- $31,580,000 state and local taxes generated from travel spending

Travel Means Jobs

- 11,430 jobs directly supported by tourism spending within the region
- $283,370,000 travel-generated earnings

Source: Dean Runyan and Associates, Travel Texas, August 2019